

REBELS CHASED BY A SCOUTING PARTY

FILIPINOS COME NEAR MAKING IMPORTANT CAPTURE.

Reconnoitering Force of Nine Persons Barely Reach Camp in Safety—Major Bell Runs From the Enemy—Insurgents Pressing American Outposts—To Enlist Natives.

Manila, June 3.—The insurgents are increasing their forces at San Fernando and are constantly attacking the American outposts. Friday morning, while making a reconnoissance, Major Bell of the Fourth cavalry surprised a party of 100 Filipinos, who were taking breakfast. The insurgents fled, but were reinforced and attacked the reconnoitering party. Major Bell's party, which consisted of nine persons, including Lieut. Vitale, an Italian attaché, were chased by the enemy for a mile and narrowly escaped being captured. Major Bell estimates that there are 4,000 Filipinos within two miles of San Fernando. The official report of the First South Dakota infantry shows that 60 per cent of the men of the regiment are unfit for duty.

GEN. OTIS MAY ENLIST NATIVES.

Number Not Limited—Volunteers Will Not Be Called For.

Washington, June 3.—At the cabinet meeting Friday, after considering the latest cable reports of Gen. Otis, it was decided that a call for provisional troops to serve in the Philippines was not necessary. Gen. Otis, in reply to inquiries, reported that the probable conditions next fall were problematical. The outlook was for a surrender before that time. Repeated overtures indicated a desire of the Filipinos to make terms, but Otis would insist on surrender first before granting any concessions. The peace commissioners were working in their sphere of education, and the civil and military branches were proceeding without friction to the common end desired by the president.

It was determined to give Gen. Otis all the authority necessary to increase his forces and to permit him to enlist as many native troops as he deems proper. The only restriction placed on Gen. Otis in raising a native force was that he should organize the Filipinos into small detachments, to be commanded by American officers, with a number of Americans as non-commissioned officers, to set an example in discipline and soldierly bearing to their native comrades.

The cabinet has concluded to supply the place of the volunteers, as they are mustered out, from the regular establishment by minimizing the garrisons in this country and perhaps drawing upon Cuba for regulars already seasoned to a tropical climate.

The surgeon general of the army has expressed the opinion that should the campaign in the Philippines be pursued during the rainy season it will be at the risk of the health of the troops. The fevers in the Philippines are as severe and fatal as in Cuba, and the ravages wrought in the trenches at Santiago are recalled as a warning against the risk of like exposure in Luzon.

Such guerrilla warfare as Aguinaldo may indulge in during the summer months cannot, it is said, gain him any advantage. The American forces will be well sheltered against inclement weather, and occasional scouting parties will clear the country near the captured towns of marauding bands. No movement in force is expected to be undertaken unless unusually favorable conditions should present themselves to the military experts in command.

To Invite Volunteers.

St. Paul, Minn., June 3.—A mass meeting of citizens of St. Paul and Minneapolis was held here Friday with the view of asking President McKinley to have the ten regiments of volunteers now in the Philippines brought to St. Paul for mustering out at the time of the president's visit here. Strong sentiment, however, developed against the move. It was finally decided to send a Twin City committee to San Francisco, where the regiments will be mustered out, which will ask the Thirtieth Minnesota, and any other regiments that may wish to, to come to St. Paul and participate in the demonstrations during President McKinley's stay in the state.

Americans Fight Old Friends.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 3.—According to Corporal Henry C. Edwards of troop D, Fourth cavalry, who was in Pittsburg Friday, American soldiers are in command of some of the insurgent troops in the Philippines and are fighting their former commands. Last summer a number of the United States men were dishonorably discharged from our army for various offenses. He says these men have joined the insurgent army.

VERDICT ANNOUNCED IN DREYFUS MATTER

INTERESTED PARTY ORDERED TO BE BROUGHT BACK.

Court Orders a New Court Martial to Sit at Rennes—President Mazan Read Verdict in Favor of Revision—Announcement Received Quietly—No Demonstration.

Paris, June 3.—[Special]—The Court of Cassation this morning announced a decision in the Dreyfus matter. The court ordered the new court martial to sit at Rennes.

President Mazan, of the court, read the verdict in favor of revision and ordered Dreyfus brought back immediately.

The announcement of the verdict was received quietly. There were comparatively few persons in the court room when the decision was received. There has been no demonstration on the streets thus far.

Captain Alfred Dreyfus, an Alsatian Jew employed in the French war office, was arrested in 1894 in great secrecy and at a time of anti-semitic agitation. His arrest was the result of the discovery of a document thought to indicate him in traitors' acts. Before he had even been heard in his own presence, Gen. Mercier, then minister of war, announced publicly that he had positive proof of Dreyfus' guilt.

A secret court martial was held, and Dreyfus was convicted to be publicly degraded and banished to Devil's Isle. The scene of Dreyfus' degradation was most dramatic.

Thousands surrounded him in the yards of Ecole Militaire, hissing, jeering, and execrating him as a traitor.

As an officer broke his sword across his knee, he raised his voice and cried: "I swear I am innocent... Vive La France."

March 15 he was taken to Devil's Island. Not long after his conviction, doubts as to his guilt arose, and agitation started by Zola, who in a famous newspaper article, accused his fellow officers of conspiring to prove Dreyfus guilty of a crime he never committed. Henry's suicide, Esterhazy's confession of forgery, and other events connected with the famous case are now well known to newspaper readers.

JURY GIVES CROUSE VERDICT FOR $20,000

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR THE JANESVILLE ENGINEER.

Ten Ballots Taken Before the Agreement Was Reached—Nine Favored Giving Plaintiff $25,000; One Favored $20,000, and Two Were For a Less Amount—Case Is Familiar

The jury in the well known case of George F. Crouse against the Chicago & Northwestern railway company, after deliberating from 10:45 yesterday morning until 7:35 last evening, finally succeeded in an agreement and brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, assessing his damages at $20,000. When it was announced that the jury had agreed, Judge Siebeck was summoned and the court officers he announced the result.

Ten ballots were taken and for nine ballots nine members of the jury voted in favor of placing the plaintiff's damages at $25,000; one at $20,000; one at $18,000, and one at $15,000. On the tenth ballot a compromise was effected on $20,000.

After the announcement of the verdict, Judge Siebeck stated that he would listen to any arguments the attorneys desired to make on Wednesday, June 14th.

The case is a most familiar one to the citizens of Janesville and Rock county. The plaintiff was an engineer in the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern road and had acted in that capacity for a number of years prior to the accident. On the night of Sunday, July 26th, 1896, Engineer Crouse was pulling a freight south. There had been a very hard storm, but Engineer Crouse had received his orders at Milton Junction to make Janesville. When near the "black bridge," north of the city, a flash of lightning illuminated the track and Engineer Crouse saw a washout and was unable to stop, so he put on a full head of steam and attempted to cross. The engine passed in safety, but the tender broke loose and dropped, followed by a number of cars. Engineer Crouse was injured about the back and hip and physicians say that he can never recover.

Suit was afterward brought by the plaintiff, and the case was tried before Judge Bennett at the November term of 1897. The jury awarded the plaintiff a verdict of $20,000. An appeal was taken to the supreme court and it was sent back for a new trial on the ground of error in the case.

The second trial was taken up last Monday in the Rock county circuit court, Judge Siebeck, of Madison, presiding.

The jury brought in a special verdict in the Crouse case. The eleven questions and their answers were as follows:

1. Was the culvert in question so constructed and maintained as to conduct through it the water which it was intended to conduct through, not only in ordinary showers, but in severe showers that would naturally occur during a series of years, and which could reasonably be anticipated?

Answer. No.

2. Was the culvert in question negligently and carelessly constructed and maintained by the defendant company, its agents or employees so as to render it inadequate for the purpose for which it was constructed?

Answer. Yes.

3. Was the said culvert carefully and thoroughly inspected from time to time by the employees of the company, whose duty it was to give such inspection?

Answer. It was not.

4. Did the nearness of the gravel pit to the culvert, in the month of July render said culvert unsafe in view of the water that might be conducted through it?

Answer. Yes.

5. Was the rainstorm on the night of July 26th, 1896, extraordinary, unusual and unexpected in its character or unprecedented, and one which had only occurred at such long and irregular intervals that it would not be anticipated by men of ordinary prudence by their business calculations?

Answer. No.

6. Might the wash-out in the track have been discovered by the defendant railroad company, by reasonable and proper inspection, and in time to have prevented the accident?

Answer. Yes.

7. Was the storm which occurred on the night of July 26, 1896, one likely to cause damage to the defendant's road bed and track, where the culvert in question was situated?

Answer. Yes.

8. Was the defendant's servant, Stageman, guilty of any negligence in not properly and carefully inspecting the road near where this culvert was, on the night in question?

Answer. Yes.

9. Was the plaintiff in the exercise of ordinary care at and prior to the time of his injury?

Answer. Yes.

10. Was the plaintiff injured on the night in question, in consequence of the washout, without contributory negligence on his part?

Answer. Yes.

11. What damage has the plaintiff sustained in consequence of the injury received on the night in question?

Answer. $20,000.

Dated, June 2, 1899.

I. C. BROWNELL, Foreman.

The jury consisted of George L. Garlock, Ezra Griffith, Leroy F. Holloway, W. B. Patterson, F. F. Austin, M. M. Murray, L. M. Gilmore, W. H. Blair, M. J. Aiken, Jerome Howland, F. P. Smiley and I. C. Brownell.

The case will be carried up to the supreme court.

LOAN EXHIBIT IS STRONG

Landscapes By Famous Artists Are Displayed at the Hotel Windsor

There is much of interest in each department of the Art League's exhibition this year. The display of original work is larger than in years past and is very satisfactory. Janesville people have been prepared by previous showings for this excellence, but there has been much surprise over the extent and variety of the loan exhibit. Mrs. W. H. Burr's landscapes, one a beautiful bit by Wyant; the stretch of beach by Charles F. Browne, loaned by Mrs. Fred A. Capelle; the exquisite oils loaned by Mrs. J. S. Bowdoin; the water colors and Italian marbles sent in by Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jeffris; and in another line the cameo roses and cobweb painting of Mrs. J. B. McLean all suggest the scope of the exhibition.

There are many portraits in the collection, and the personal interest is strong in some of the other works as well. This is the case with the landscapes and flower pieces of Mrs. S. S. Judd, these being sent in by Mrs. Chas. D. Stevens.

SMALL HOUSE GREETS OWEN

Good Production, Well Presented and Worthy of a Liberal Patronage

The return engagement of William Owen at Myers Grand last evening was a surprise to not only Mr. Owen but his admirers of the Bower City.

Notwithstanding the unappreciation of Janesville theatre goers, a most creditable rendition of Alexander Dumas' great romantic drama, "The Three Guardsmen," was given by this rising young actor, who is very clever, with plenty of enthusiasm and talent, who gives promise to becoming one of the foremost actors on the American stage. While it is not necessary with "The Three Guardsmen," Mr. Owen could put life into the dullest of plays and has a charm of manner and an individuality which is irresistible. The part of D'Artagnan which Mr. Owen took last night is a part well suited for him.

J. W. McConnell made an ideal Richelieu and is an actor of much force and capable of heavier work.

The leading ladies as Anne of Austria and Lady de Winter took their parts in a most acceptable manner and were splendid stage figures.

The production was worthy of a well filled house and it is to be regretted that the audience was so small, which was no doubt due to the fact that many were seeking rest from the effects of the Woodmen's picnic and the threatening weather.

A NEW CHARM.

Something More for the Enthusiastic Lover to Spend Money On.

The wall of the man, "There is always something being invented to coax the money out of one's pocket," is truly a just one when you come to seriously examine the many devices and fads which are constantly being put in the market, with which to enhance beautiful woman's charms. The latest fad which has been invented, according to the New York Herald, and which every man who would hold his sweetheart's affection must present her with, is in one sense of the word not a cheap one, though the original outlay is not very great. It is called a flower charm, and is intended for a chatelaine of a Cyrano chain, or it may be turned aside from its original purpose and made to do duty as a photo frame and an ornament for my lady's desk. It is two round glass disks, concave and convex, set in a silver or gold rim. A tiny screw at the top loosens the frame and the glass disks are moved. Between these disks it is the fad of the hour to place two or three large double violets. Now, the man who gives this little charm to his sweetheart must keep it filled with fresh violets. Should he allow them to grow faded and withered then his love is supposed to have grown cold. One girl has very ingeniously converted her charm into a photograph frame, and the pretty little charm holds two photos, one of herself and one of her fiancé, and it hangs on a cute little plush easel on her escritoire. Let it be used for its original purpose, or as a frame, the charm is the fad of the hour, and they are selling them just as fast as they can be manufactured. They are prettier hung on a chatelaine than dangling from a long Cyrano chain, but they must always be supplied with fresh flowers or their beauty and symbolism are lost.

Reward Refused.

Of all the cities in the world, if a person must be robbed, Vienna is the town in which to have the performance enacted. Some time ago a Boston gentleman had his watch, a valuable gold one, and a sum of money stolen from him while in that city. He offered $50 reward for the recovery of the property. The watch did not appear, and on returning to America he left his name and address and the number of his watch, together with the amount of the reward, with the police. A short time ago the gentleman received his watch, together with the reward intact, and a polite note from the director saying that it was against the rules for policemen to receive money rewards; of course, if a civilian had recovered the watch the reward would have been paid. The only charge was fifty cents, the expense of transporting the watch from New York to Boston. The thief had been found upon him and forwarded by the city government of Vienna free of charge to New York. There is a degree of innocence about the Vienna police that suggests odious comparisons. —New York Times.

New Chatelaines.

The fashion of wearing chatelaines is being revived. A bunch of pendants is suspended by a chain ten to eighteen inches in length and fastened at the waist by a safety pin more or less elaborate. The very latest effect is made in gun metal. The short chain and spread pin is the old and most popular style. It is shown in French gilt, a metal suggestive of the Midway. Then there is the regulation chatelaine, with medium lengths in chains, in sterling or gold. A tiny mirror, scent bottle, tablet and pencil are indispensable necessities as a starter. The rest follows as a matter of personal convenience.

TO CLEAN MATTING.

To make soiled matting look fresh and bright prepare a pailful of warm water with a handful of salt and four tablespoonfuls of Ivory Soap shavings dissolved in it. With a clean cloth squeezed out of the mixture, wipe every breadth of the matting, rubbing soiled spots until they disappear.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory," they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

COPYRIGHT, 1898 BY THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO., CINCINNATI

TO CEDE CAROLINE ISLANDS.

Spain's Possessions in the Pacific to Be Transferred to Germany.

Madrid, June 3.—The queen regent, in the speech from the throne at the opening of the cortes Friday, said: "The pangs at my heart are renewed in considering the misfortunes of my own country. It is more dignified to compose ourselves in quietness than to complain anew. The government in ratifying the peace treaty acted according to the constitution. Although the Carolines, the Marianas and the Palaos yet remain under the dominion of Spain, the government has made arrangements for their cession to Germany, for which a bill will be presented to you."

Comment of London Papers.

London, June 3.—The press of this city is mildly interested in Spain's cession of the Caroline islands to Germany, the terms of which cannot, as yet, be ascertained. The transfer is generally regarded as a reward for Germany's sympathy during the war, but as not affecting the other powers, except as an indication of Germany's spirit of expansion.

Surprise at Washington.

Washington, June 3.—Nothing is known here officially of the proposed cession by Spain to Germany of her remaining islands in the Pacific. Assistant Secretary Hill of the state department says that no news has been received by the department.

Washington, June 3.—Lieut.-Col. Robert Craig, United States signal service, has been ordered to Manila to become chief signal officer on Gen. Otis' staff, and press censor. He succeeds Major Richard F. Thompson, who will return to San Francisco.

Abdul Hamid Is Seriously Sick.

Moscow, June 3.—It is reported from Constantinople that the sultan is seriously sick, and his physician, Mayroyeni Pasha, while he persistently denies that a fatal result is to be feared, hardly leaves Abdul Hamid's bedside.

DON'T GO IT BLIND.

THERE'S NO NEED TO IN JANESVILLE.

The Way Is Almost Hedged With Guide-Posts.

Have you ever read a newspaper article, a glowing account of some incident told in elusive words to lead you on, and found it ended up with a proprietary medicine advertisement? Made you angry, didn't it? And were you convinced of the merit of the article? We think not, because it told the experience of some stranger in a far-away town. To take his word for it was like "going it blind." It's a very different thing when a statement is prescribed from a citizen, from people we know, and that's the case here.

Mr. H. P. Hanson, of 108 Pleasant St. engineer, employed at the Janesville Machine Co., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did me all the good that could be expected and I recommend them to any one who may be troubled with a lame back or any kidney disorder. After procuring them at the People's drug store and taking them I felt better sleep better, my back did not ache like it did, and I did not rise in the morning with a lame and sore back. I suffered from these symptoms for four or five years and I was more than pleased at the results obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I highly recommend this reliable remedy to others."

"Illinois" Taint Proof Refrigerator.

Any refrigerator will perhaps do for a short time, but they are not an every season purchase, and the poor refrigerator does not improve with age. That damp, sour, repugnant smell, comes to most all refrigerators without the proper insulation and circulation.

ILLINOIS AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATORS

Are not only perfect in circulation, but are also much handier both for the placing of ice in the box and in caring for provisions. According to nature's laws cold air descends and warm air ascends. Illinois Refrigerators are made to aid these conditions; the two air currents do not meet opposing forces in either the ice or provision chamber.

WAGES ARE INCREASED.

Chicago concerns manufacturing machinery of all kinds, having 30,000 employees, have given their men an increase in wages recently amounting all the way from five to thirty per cent. The following table prepared by the Times-Herald, gives the number of men employed by some of the concerns and the percentage of increase in wages that has been recently made:

Establishment	Emps.	Per Cent.
National Tube Works	8,000	30
McCormick Harvesting Machine Co.	7,000	30
Deering Harvester Company	6,000	30
Crane Company	5,000	30
National Malleable Casting Co.	2,000	10
Gates Iron Works	400 to 500	10
Webster Manufacturing Company	400	10
Link Belt Machinery Company	350	8
M. C. Bullock Manufacturing Co.	175	10
A. J. Plomondon Manufacturing Co.	200	10
Charles F. Elmer Engineering Co.	100	8
Kelly, Maus & Co.	100	10

The above table does not include all the concerns that have made their employees happy by swelling their pay envelopes. Many of the firms do not care to make public the extent of wage increase they have made.

SETS MR. COOPER RIGHT.

Congressman Mann, who speaks for Mr. Hopkins on the speakership fight, is out with a correction of a mistake which the Hopkins men made regarding the alleged "hop" of Congressman Cooper of Racine, from the Illinois to the Iowa candidate. He said:

"The republican congressmen in Illinois are well satisfied with the course of Mr. Cooper in the caucus which was held at Milwaukee last Saturday. Mr. Cooper did not vote for Col. Henderson on the promise of the rivers and harbors committee chairmanship, or of any other chairmanship in the house. He voted for Mr. Hopkins, but when a majority of the Wisconsin congressmen voted for Col. Henderson, Mr. Cooper joined the others in making the choice unanimous."

The Milwaukee Brewers' association voluntarily made a decrease in the working hours of brewery employees from ten to nine hours a day. The wages that were paid for ten hours will be paid for nine hours. This is an increase of 10 per cent. About 4,000 men are affected.

Ohio, also, will march in the speakership procession which is headed, as it should be, by the representatives of the great state of Wisconsin.

John Washtub was jailed for stealing cattle at San Bois, I. T. It is supposed that he made off with a "scrub stock."

Du Patty du Clam is now in jail, and if full justice is done, he will take Dreyfus' place on Devil's Island.

A great deal depends upon a point of view—especially with the opposing attorneys in a law suit.

SOME BADGER BRIGHTNESS

Green Bay Gazette—Wisconsin congressmen took the initiative in the speakership contest and it is pretty safe to say that the result wouldn't be changed by the referendum.

Evening Wisconsin—The disclosures of the Rowan trial, and reflections upon the matrimonial conduct of the husband, suggest the remark of the French widow. Being asked why she wore lilac in mourning for her departed spouse, she replied: "It is honest; it is decent; and it does not discourage."

Oshkosh Northwestern—R. J. O'Hanlon, principal of the Twenty-first district school in Milwaukee, had not now been convinced that even the easiest and most popular way to conduct a school is to institute nothing new and let things go on in the same rut that the public has learned to love.

Milwaukee Journal—The success of Milwaukee athletes in the contest colleges would suggest an essay on the effect of beer on the physique.

Kenosha Gazette—It is no discredit to a man to have enemies—to have men oppose him. It is the one who presumes a "manly-pant" in the face of the opposition, who is the man, those of vigor and push, who have convictions, and having them defend them, because they are right, who create enmity. The man who never expresses himself, who agrees with you always, and with everybody, who hesitates to discharge his obligations when they come upon him, is not a man. He is a man who is a man, and to be candid, a man who is a man is more to be admired than a friend you make by saying nothing.

Kenosha Gazette—The Janesville Gazette, Rep., speaking of The Milwaukee Journal, says: "It is still a 'believer in democratic principles,' which means, well, what does it mean? We respectfully refer the question to the voters. As far as the 'principles' is concerned this paper is ready to assert that The Journal is the peer of any paper in the state, or in the country, for that matter, in its honesty of expression, and in its courage. And it is today doing more for the good of the democratic party than any other paper in the state. And it is doing it, not in a cringing, cowering manner, but in an expression of honest convictions, and in pointing out what is right and what is wrong in politics."

FALSE ACCUSATIONS.

A Robbery That Forever Beggars the Good Name of the Innocent Victim.

Our best friend may not be exempt from suspicion, when, through carelessness on the part of ourselves or others, absentmindedness, or a fatal coincidence, some article of value or association becomes mysteriously missing. Maybe it didn't amount to much—it is usually the case—which serves greatly to magnify the annoyance. We know exactly when, where and how we last had it, and the chain of evidence is complete, and we are positive in our minds that our convictions are just as well as correct. Women are more given to hanging on circumstantial evidence than men. It may be owing to their intuitive powers, which are supposed to be infinitely superior to those of the other sex; but they form hasty conclusions and adhere to them with a pertinacity that neither love nor friendship has power to change. The amount of mistrust, uncharitableness—nay, positive venom—which an erroneous suspicion can generate in the average woman is appalling. It requires no special acumen to detect the foibles and failings of others, but to tolerate them with a silent forbearance marks the truly noble character. It is distressing when a friend, an equal, falls within the pale of our unjust suspicion. But what can be said of those unfortunate creatures whom the accident of birth has placed beneath us in the social world, who are daily obliged to shoulder the responsibilities of our belongings? Remember a chance word against a servant, and the reputation of a whole life may be ruined, for a stigma of that kind leaves an odor which time itself can scarcely eradicate. Many a faithful heart has grieved to death under the burden of a false accusation. "Who steals my purse steals trash," but it is an affair of more serious moment when the theft is the good name of a friend or acquaintance, or even that of a stranger.—Woman's Home Companion.

This Snake Swallowed Dynamite.

While blasting out a rift on his farm near Union Center, Pa., William Racklyft came upon a large blacksnake. The reptile was sluggish, and evidently had just feasted after his winter's sleep, but when Racklyft got a club it coiled and showed fight. After some maneuvering he got near enough to deal the reptile a fierce blow on the head. There was a terrific report and Racklyft was hurled violently to the ground. The shock stunned him for several moments. When he got up he found that the snake had been blown to bits, all that was left being a piece of the tail. For a time it seemed incomprehensible. Then Racklyft saw that some of the dynamite used in blasting the rock was missing, and it is supposed that the snake gobbled the explosive along with some particles of flint, and that the blow on the snake's body had been sufficient to cause an explosion.

New York's Expenses.

The gross expenses of the state of New York in the year 1898 will, it is computed, amount to $25,000,000, of which nearly 10 per cent will be necessary to pay the deficits of departments which exceeded in 1898 or in previous years the appropriations made for them.

ESCAPE OF TRAIN

ROBBERS CUT OFF

THE BANDITS SECURED FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Fifteen Men in Command of Sheriff Tracked Bandits to Medicine Row Mountains—Reward of Two Thousand Dollars Offered for Every Desperado, Dead or Alive.

Omaha, June 3.—[Special]—A telegram to the Union Pacific officials from near the scene of yesterday's holdup in which fifty thousand dollars is said to have been secured, says fifteen men in command of the sheriff tracked the bandits into Medicine Row mountain and have them where they cannot escape without fighting double their own number.

The posse have been near enough to the robber band to see them several times. The posse found evidence that the bandits deliberately provided relays where they could feed and water their horses.

A fierce fight is hourly expected. The sheriff and men are armed with long range Winchester and have been offered two thousand dollars for every bandit they capture, alive or dead.

The bandits are armed with short carbines and will stand little show in a fight with the officers.

All escape from Medicine Row mountain has been cut off by sending trains loaded with armed men over the road for several miles where the outlaws must pass in their flight, provided they escape the sheriff and his men in their rear.

EDITOR "NIC" SMITH WILL TAKE A REST

AFTER TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS IN JOURNALISTIC FIELDS.

Sixteen Years of His Life Were Spent as Editor of The Gazette—Gives
Up the Editorial Pen and Severs
His Connection with the Fond du Lac
Commonwealth—Sketch of His Life

Col. Nicholas Smith, who for sixteen years held the editorial reins of The Gazette and for nearly a like number of years has filled an enviable place in the journalistic ranks of Badgerdom, acting under the imperative command of his physician, has laid down the pen and gives up the editorial seat of the Fond du Lac Commonwealth, which he has so ably filled, to gain that which is beyond price—health and strength.

A correspondent at Fond du Lac in writing to the Milwaukee Journal, has the following to say of this veteran newspaper man:

Those who have known Col. Smith and who have been his steadfast friends and admirers for near a third of a century, and they are legion, have been shocked by the suddenness with which this cloud has appeared on a clear horizon, and sincerely hope that within a few weeks, or months at most, it may pass away and permit the veteran Fond du Lac editor to return to the walks which have known him so favorably and so well.

Col. Smith occupies an enviable position in Badger state newspaperdom. His is a story that can be read and studied with profit by any young man who seeks to rise by his own efforts to a position of usefulness and universal esteem.

His Start in Education

One of the most striking incidents in the life of this self-made man happened when he was 21 years of age, when he gathered together the entire net earnings of a summer's work, the magnificent sum of $5.40, and walked to Galena, and commenced the infinite toil of self-education, which eventually brought forth such fruitful results.

Here began the struggle which was to be his turning point in life. It was while engaged in untangling the mazes of law propositions that the firing on Fort Sumter re-echoed throughout the north, and young Smith was among the first to answer his country's call. In conjunction with Maj. Wm. Warner, later a member of congress, a company was raised which became Company H, Thirty-third Wisconsin volunteers. In the election of officers the future editor was chosen as orderly sergeant, but two weeks later the governor gave him a commission as second lieutenant and within four months he had received a commission of first lieutenant for distinguished services.

Suffering from an injury, received when a boy, he was compelled to resign early in 1865, and return to his Wisconsin home. Going to Prairie du Chien he formed a partnership with O. B. Thomas, later a member of Congress, and commenced the practice of law. At the end of three years the lawyer became an editor, connecting himself with the Waukesha Freeman. Two years later Colonel Smith purchased an interest in the Prairie du Chien Union, and while there was made the Madison correspondent of the Milwaukee Sentinel. From Madison he went to Washington, representing The Sentinel in the last session of the Forty-third congress.

Sixteen years were spent at Janesville as editor of The Gazette, at the conclusion of which service he went to Milwaukee to become press secretary of the republican state central committee, holding that place till January, 1895. He then came to Fond du Lac to accept the position of editor of The Commonwealth, and on June 30, the date when his resignation takes effect, will have completed four and one-half years in that capacity. It is not as editor alone that Col. Smith has won distinction. On the lecture platform he has been received with marked favor and his researches along certain lines of study have been surpassed none. His lectures have delighted audiences in nine different states.

From the lecture platform it was a natural step to the pulpit. Many of the leading pulpits of Milwaukee, Janesville and other Wisconsin cities have been filled by him with distinction and to his title of lawyer, editor and lecturer, has been added that of preacher.

He has done a good deal of magazine writing and contributed numerous important articles to the History of Milwaukee, which was published in two volumes about four years ago. In fact, over in Janesville they always regarded him as a walking encyclopedia. When relieved of his duties as editor of the Commonwealth, June 30, he will go immediately to Milwaukee to place himself in the care of his physicians.

LIGHTNING FIRED HOUSE AND BARN

WILLIAM SCHMITZ LOSES HIS HOME AND CONTENTS.

Family Barely Had Time To Escape
with Their Lives—Barns and Sheds on the Margaret Tripp Farm Destroyed—Five Calves Were Consumed by the Flames.

During the severe storm last night lightning fired the large barn and cattle sheds on the Mrs. Margaret Tripp farm in the town of Rock.

Before the flames were under control they had done fatal work leveling the wooden structures to the ground.

As soon as the flames were discovered the farm hands started at once to save the horses and cattle.

All were removed with the exception of five calves which were consumed.

The bolt struck at one o'clock this morning and within five minutes time the buildings were enveloped in dense smoke that filled the air, making the work of rescue difficult.

This is the second barn on the same spot destroyed by lightning, and a few years ago a cyclone pulled a barn off the same foundation and scattered it for three miles.

Schmitt Home Destroyed

During the storm lightning struck the William Schmitt home south of this city and three miles east of Clinton.

The flames got in their fatal work within a few minutes time and the family had barely time to escape. The house and all its contents were destroyed.

Railroads Have Trouble

The severe rainfall delayed trains on both the Chicago & Northwestern and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroads into this city.

The early morning paper train from Chicago was two hours late owing to a washout on the Northwestern road between here and Atton.

The damage was soon repaired and by 9 o'clock traffic was again resumed.

On the Milwaukee road morning trains were delayed.

Wind Raises Havoc

At 10 o'clock last evening a strong wind visited this section of the country raising havoc with small buildings, trees and wind mills. The damage will amount to a goodly sum.

THE WATER DRINKERS' DEBATE

Profitable Session Last Evening—Three Visitors Were Present.

At the regular meeting of People's lodge No. 460, Independent Order Good Templars, last evening, there was a debate on the following question:

The speakers on the affirmative were N. Acker, J. W. Webb and Frank Humphrey.

For the negative the speakers were J. A. Caniff, Charles Ward, Edson Baker and D. W. Pound.

The decision was unanimously in favor of the negative.

Four new members were initiated and there were seven or eight applications. The following visitors were present: James Stockman and Miss Lulu Mills, of Milton Junction Lodge No. 62, and Frank Mathews, of Elgin, Iowa. Remarks were made by all three at the meeting. Next Friday evening a literary program will be given. June 10 there will be an open session.

LOOKS LIKE POISONING CASE

Six Valuable Sheep Die Suddenly on the Sloan Farm.

On the I. C. Sloan farm, near the edge of the city limits, it looks very much as though some one had been doing spite work by poisoning valuable sheep.

Yesterday six were found dead near the barns, and several more are ill.

Dr. Roberts, who was called, says that the dead animals show symptoms of poisoning.

WILL WE CELEBRATE ON JULY FOURTH?

COMMITTEE TO PASS UPON THE QUESTION.

Sentiment of Last Light's Meeting Was in Favor of a Rousing Demonstration—This Year Should Be Marked by a Patriotic Carnival More Than Any in the Past.

Janesville should celebrate the "glorious Fourth."

And in right royal style, too.

That was the sentiment of the enthusiastic public meeting held last night.

A. P. Burnham was elected chairman, and C. O. Bennett secretary.

A short discussion demonstrated the fact that the persons present desired to celebrate, and were willing to contribute and work to that end.

Chairman Burnham was authorized to appoint a committee of ten to make plans, and decide on a course of action. The committee will see that a canvass of the town is made, and report to another public meeting to be held at the same place on next Monday evening, June 5, at which time it will be determined whether Janesville will celebrate or not.

The committee appointed consisted of C. D. Child, Robert M. Bostwick, Geo. M. McKey, Charles B. Conrad, Amos Rehberg, P. J. Mount, Colin C. MacLean, Geo. E. Osgood, James Sennett, and John P. Sweeney.

Now let all of Janesville's public spirited citizens join in and push the scheme along. Do not wait to be asked for a contribution, but hand your money to any member of the committee. Every little helps, and no contribution can be so small that it will not be acceptable.

Many business men will give ten dollars each, many will give five, while subscriptions of $1, fifty and twenty-five cents, should come in a rain.

Some years have passed since Janesville celebrated the Fourth, and of all the years in the history of the country, this is the one to celebrate—not as a matter of business, but as a matter of sentiment and patriotism.

Let us celebrate not only American independence, but all the victories of the war, and do it in a way that will long be remembered.

LATE NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

HENDERSON TO BE SPEAKER

Congressman Hopkins Retires from the Contest.

VICTORY FOR WESTERN MAN.

It Is Conceded That the Iowa Candidate Has Sufficient Votes Already Pledged to Assure His Election—Sherman Says He Has Not Given Up.

Chicago, June 3.—Congressman Albert J. Hopkins withdrew from the speakership contest Friday, throwing the Illinois delegation to Col. David B. Henderson of Iowa.

The delegations now pledged to Col. Henderson are: Iowa 11, Wisconsin 10, Minnesota 7, Ohio 15, Illinois 14. In addition to these fifty-seven votes

ALBERT J. HOPKINS.

Michigan is expected to give Henderson 12, Indiana 9, Kansas 6, Massachusetts 7, and South Dakota 2. These thirty-six votes are counted as certain for the Iowa congressman, making a total of ninety-three votes.

There are 185 republican members of the next house, and Col. Henderson now practically has the ninety-three votes needed to secure the caucus nomination. In the other western states California has six republican congressmen, and Oregon and Washington two each, besides states that have one or more republican members.

Mr. Hopkins Friday sent the following communication to Col. Henderson:

"Col. David B. Henderson, Dubuque, Iowa—I have decided to withdraw from the speakership contest and the Illinois delegation has decided to support your candidacy. I wish you every success. ALBERT J. HOPKINS."

AGREE THAT IT IS HENDERSON.

Politicians Believe That the Iowan Will Be the Next Speaker.

Washington, June 3.—Col. Henderson's triumphal march through the west has fairly taken away the breath of the oldest politicians here, and tonight he is unhesitatingly named as the next speaker of the house. It is figured that Henderson has a solid nucleus of ninety votes. To these must be added the scattering votes from the far west, Kentucky and Tennessee, which are reasonably certain to fall into the movement, so that the Iowan man is sure of a cautious majority entirely independent of the east, though he can command strength in New England, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and possibly New York.

So much have the politicians abandoned all idea of any other speaker than Henderson that they have turned their attention promptly to the organization of the house and the committees.

Sherman Still a Candidate. Syracuse, N. Y., June 3.—The Post-Standard prints the following signed statement from Representative Sherman:

"Utica, June 2, 1899.—To the Editor of the Post-Standard: Unless a current report with reference to Ohio is correct I have not lost the support of a single member upon whom I counted in the contest for the speakership. Mr. Henderson is not yet selected as the republican choice.

"So far as I am concerned, I have striven to eliminate sectionalism from this friendly contest. Whoever is chosen speaker, it will be unfortunate if the selection be based upon sectional lines, or be, even remotely, the result of any promises or deals.

"I am certainly still a candidate. I simply state broadly that I am in accord with my party and with the administration."

Col. Henderson Is Grateful.

Dubuque, Iowa, June 3.—D. B. Henderson made the following statement concerning the speakership contest: "I must still decline to give out figures, as I prefer to allow the state and individual members to speak for themselves. But I cannot withhold an expression of profound gratitude because of the action of the states that have spoken, including the announcement of the withdrawal of Mr. Hopkins and the united support of the Illinois delegation."

Massachusetts Henderson's. Boston, Mass., June 3.—The Massachusetts congressional delegation announces its support of Henderson for the speakership. The delegation dined here today and took the formal vote on the matter.

Chicago Live Stock Report.

Chicago, June 2.—Today's arrivals were barely up to the average for Friday's market, and the few attractive cattle sold more readily than Thursday and at a little firmer prices. Hogs recovered most of the decline noted earlier this week, nearly all selling in good time at that, but the trade in sheep and lambs was still feeble and unsatisfactory to the selling side, at the lowest scale of value in several weeks. Receipts were estimated at 2,000 cattle, 22,000 hogs and 5,000 sheep. Values for cattle and sheep are close to the lowest level of the week, but hogs have moved up 5@10c from Thursday's bottom range.

GEO. K. NASH NAMED IN OHIO.

Chosen as Republican Candidate for Governor.

Columbus, Ohio, June 3.—Judge George K. Nash was nominated for governor on the second ballot by the state republican convention on Friday. On motion of Chairman Holcomb of Cleveland, the nomination of Nash was made unanimous without a count. George K. Nash is a leading attorney of Columbus, 45 years old, and a widower. He has been prosecuting attorney of Franklin county, attorney general of the state, member of the Supreme court, and, during four campaigns, chairman of the state committee.

The platform indorses the national and state administrations, upholds the president's course in the Spanish and Filipino wars, and declares for the gold standard. On the questions of trusts the resolutions say:

"We commend the action of the Seventy-third general assembly of Ohio in passing the stringent law now on our statute books, prohibiting organization of trusts, and we denounce such unlawful combinations as inimical to the interests of the people. We pledge our party to such further legislation as experience may determine necessary to prevent the formation and operation of such iniquitous and dangerous combinations."

Other resolutions recommend laws for equalizing taxes, uniform system of selecting delegates for state conventions, protesting against lynching, and strongly favoring the Ohio centennial at Toledo in 1902.

Subsidies Are Favored.

Wichita, Kan., June 3.—When President Stannard called the trans-Mississippi congress to order Friday not more than half the delegates were present.

A resolution asking for the national congress to appropriate $500,000 for a Louisiana purchase celebration, to be held at St. Louis in 1903, was unanimously adopted.

The resolutions committee reported favorably upon Senator Hanna's suggestion to subsidize the American merchant marine. M. W. Bates spoke against the scheme, characterizing it as a humbug, and saying it was only a plan of capitalists. Many delegates spoke in favor of subsidy, and as a result the resolution was adopted.

Paying Up Wesleyan's Debt.

Bloomington, Ill., June 3.—As a result of the meeting held Thursday night in aid of the Illinois Wesleyan university of this city about $5,000 in pledges has been added to the subscription for the purpose of freeing the time-honored college from its incubus of $38,000 debt. The total subscription toward this end is now $20,000. Committees have been appointed to carry on the work by special solicitation, and it is hoped and confidently expected that by June 15, commencement day, the remaining $18,000 will have been pledged.

Altgeld Intends to Resign.

Louisville, Ky., June 3.—The report that ex-Gov. Altgeld of Illinois would resign from the committee on ways and means of the national democratic committee was confirmed in a statement made by him Friday. Furthermore all the members may resign. "As far as any dissension is concerned," he said, "I can't say that there is any. I will resign and I feel sure all the other members will do the same thing. We have been on this committee long enough and should give others a chance."

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

Failures During May Were the Smallest Ever Known.

$2,000,000 LESS THAN APRIL.

Demand for Iron Is Increasing—Many More Furnaces Are in Blast, and the Famine Grows Severe—Cotton Goods Continue Steady.

New York, June 3.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"April failures were the smallest ever reported in any month. May failures are nearly $2,000,000 smaller, only 68.2 per cent of the smallest previously reported in any month, and only 34.3 per cent of those in May last year. Solvent payments were $3,328,292,052, and defaults were $3,820,686, or 45.7 cents on $1,000, against 70 cents in April, $1.19 in March and $3.02 in September, 1898. Comparison with previous years indicates that the rate of defaults to solvent business has never been as small in any other month as in May, 1899. Both in manufacturing and in trading failures were the smallest ever known in any month, and in each branch eight of the fourteen classes showed smaller failures than in May of any other year.

"More than twenty years ago the demand for iron was called the industrial barometer, and it claims the place yet when the demand passes all belief. Many more furnaces have gone into blast, and yet the famine grows more severe. Cotton goods are steady, with increased demand, notwithstanding higher prices. Sales of wool for the week at three chief markets were $1,778,800 pounds, against 4,513,200 last year.

"Failures for the week have been 145 in the United States, against 222 last year, and 14 in Canada, against 18 last year."

President's Plans for Cuba.

Washington, June 3.—President McKinley is beginning to consider the means of turning over the island of Cuba to the natives. This event may not come for some time, but the methods to be employed will require careful consideration. The United States holds the island in trust and purely as a military possession. It can be turned over to the Cubans without consultation with congress. Present plans involve a restricted suffrage, to a certain extent based on property and intelligence, and ignoring entirely political affiliations as between insurgents and royalists. A constitutional convention will be the first body to meet and it will have full power to dictate the form of government, within certain lines laid down by the United States, to relieve it of moral responsibility for the future.

Modus Vivendi Suggested.

London, June 3.—United States Ambassador Choate had an important conference with Lord Salisbury at the foreign office Friday in reference to the Washington Anglo-American commission. At the conclusion of the conference a long cipher dispatch was cabled to Secretary Hay.

The United States is said to have suggested a modus vivendi which contemplates the restriction of British and American soldiers and police to certain prescribed territory, and to thus prevent bloodshed along the disputed border line, where the feeling between the British and American settlers is very high.

Cubans Take Our Money.

Havana, June 3.—The action of the Cuban troops at Guira de Melena, province of Havana, indicates that they have not been affected by the efforts of the anti-Gomez and anti-American faction to get them to refuse the American gratuity. The men there are enthusiastic over their payment, and present themselves and deliver their arms without the slightest hesitation. During the first two hours of payment Friday over 200 soldiers laid down their arms and received $75 each.

To Fix Wages for 10,000 Men.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 3.—Arrangements have been made to hold a joint conference in Chicago today between the representatives of the Tin Workers' International Protective association and the American Tin Plate company, to fix wages for the 10,000 skilled workmen employed in the tin-plate plants of the country. The tin workers are asking for a straight wage advance of 20 per cent, to take effect July 1.

Plenty of Fitzsimmons Money.

New York, June 3.—Backers of Bob Fitzsimmons were conspicuous by their presence Friday at the uptown sporting resorts. Bundles of money were in evidence, and the champion's friends took every bit offered. The odds, which were at even the day before, soon reverted to 1 to 2 against Jeffries, and in some instances as good as 2 1/2 to 1 was quoted on "Lanky Bob."

Big Gift for Lord Kitchener.

London, June 3.—In the house of commons Friday the government leader, Mr. Balfour, presented a message from the queen recommending a grant of £30,000 ($150,000) to Maj.-Gen. Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, the sirdar of the Egyptian army.

Lachance's timely hitting in the first game of the Baltimore series tumbled Chicago back into fifth position again yesterday and earned his own team a place in the first division, displacing Cincinnati, which lost to Boston. SILVER MEN AT A DINNER.

Ohio Valley Bi-State League Feasts at Louisville, Ky.

Louisville, Ky., June 3.—The convention of silver men of the Ohio valley reached its climax and came to a close Friday night with a dinner in honor of William J. Bryan.

In his speech at the banquet Mr. Bryan touched upon the alarming rate with which the trusts are growing under the republican administration; the great burden which imperialism will entail upon the American people and the encouraging outlook for democratic success in 1900 under the standard of bimetalism.

Before adjournment the convention unanimously adopted the following resolution: "We declare and denounce the imperialistic policy of the national administration toward the Filipinos as repugnant to the bill of rights; contrary to the constitution and the declaration of independence."

German Veterans to Meet.

Chicago, June 3.—German-Americans from all parts of the country will gather here in August for their greatest meeting ever held here. Fifty thousand visitors are expected. The festival will be the fourteenth annual reunion of the "Bundes Krieger Verein"—the German Soldiers' federation. The celebration will begin Aug. 12, and will last five days, and the visitors and local members of the federation, all of whom are honorably discharged German soldiers, will take part in receptions, parades, banquets and similar entertainments.

Confident of Securing Indemnity.

Berlin, June 3.—Prof. Delbrueck, in his Preussische Jahrbuecher, gives a study of the present international situation, in which he says: "Still the German government should not be unduly blamed. It will surely take care to secure indemnity for the damages Germans have sustained in the Philippines and in Samoa, just as formerly it conserved the interests of the German creditors of Greece."

Officials Are Hopeful.

Washington, June 3.—The officials here are quite hopeful that some good may come out of the peace conference at The Hague. The arbitration proposition submitted by the United States has met with much favor, and, although it may not be adopted in the form it was proposed, the officials here are confident that the congress will not adjourn without adopting some sort of an arbitration plan.

Call for a Directors' Meeting.

New York, June 3.—A telegraphic call for a special meeting of the board of directors of the National league, to be held here Monday, was issued Friday. The object of calling the league's directors together at this time is to seriously consider plans for the reduction of the playing circuit from twelve to ten cities.

Governor Elberle Is Dead.

Columbia, S. C., June 3.—Gov. Elberle died at his home in Marion county at 9 o'clock Friday night, aged 36 years, after an illness of four months with consumption.

William B. McSweeney, lieutenant governor, took the oath of office today.

An Old Man's Last Hope.

Made helpless as a baby by a dreadful nervous disease he read of a case like his own, and had enough faith to follow the example it set him. Now he is himself an example to others who are suffering from disorders of the nervous system.

Sawing wood, working in his garden, walking three times a day to and from his place of business—these form part of the daily routine of Edwin R. Tripp, Postmaster of Middlefield Centre, N. Y. He is past his seventieth birthday.

Nearly fifty years a blacksmith; thirty-two years Justice of the Peace; three years town clerk, then postmaster; forty-six years a resident of the town he now lives in—these are the bare outlines of a useful life.

Mr. Tripp's career is a type. His story will be read with heartfelt sympathy by thousands. His hearty endorsement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will be echoed by tens of thousands.

He said: "In March, 1892, I was attacked by what I afterwards learned was locomotor ataxia.

"Two skillful doctors did everything they could for me. I steadily became worse. Was unable to dress myself.

"Later I could not move even about the room, but was carried in my chair.

"I gave up hope. The doctors gave me no encouragement. I did not expect to live very long. I was more helpless than a baby. I sank lower and lower.

"In June the tide turned! From the lowest ebb, it began to set toward health and vigor.

"The turning point was a newspaper article.

"It told how a man, who suffered as I had suffered, had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"It gave me faith and hope. I took two boxes of the pills; then four more boxes.

"My gain was steady; my return to health was a source of daily gratification.

"In all I took eighteen boxes of the pills before I was entirely well. At first I paid 50 cents a box, but afterwards I saved money by getting six boxes at a time, paying $2.50.

"I owe my cure entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

To clinch his remarkable story and add to its helpfulness to others, Mr. Tripp made affidavit to its truthfulness before Homer Hanna, a local Notary Public.

From helplessness, suffering and despair Mr. Tripp was restored to the healthful, useful activity suggested at the beginning of this sketch. His experience is like others.

While locomotor ataxia is one of the most baffling nervous diseases with which physicians are called to contend, its cure by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People has become a matter of almost daily occurrence. Smaller nervous troubles yield much more readily to the powerful influence these vegetable pills exert in restoring wasted nerve force and in purifying and enriching the blood.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY USES TOO MUCH TOBACCO

According to a writer in the Boston Globe: President McKinley's trip to Hot Springs, Va., was taken for the purpose of getting rid of nicotine. This writer goes on to say: "A man of prominence in American life since Gen. Grant has been so industrious a cigar smoker as Mr. McKinley. He smoked all day long."

MILLIONS OF MEN smoke ten to twenty cigars a day without any bad effect. Some tobacco contain too much nicotine, hence that dull feeling after smoking. The "J. K." Cigars are made from the finest selected and cured remedious tobacco, contains less nicotine (tobacco poison) than any tobacco grown. It is a mild, free smoke, rich in aroma, equal to most ten-cent cigars, and better than any half-day cigar made. At druggists and cigar dealers.

MARRIAGE OF BABY PRINCESS.

The little Princess Isabel of Orleans is the prettiest princess in Europe. She is so pretty that she is like a realization of the princess in the old fairy tales. "Admires from Vienna say that she is the lovely victim picked out to be the bride of the old emperor of Austria when his state period of mourning is over. That will be next September. Pity this poor little princess."

When the present emperor of Austria and Hungary married Elizabeth of Bavaria forty or odd years ago, she, too, was the most beautiful princess in Europe. Her teeth dazzled people when she smiled, and she could stand on her own hair when she let it down. Since then her brother-in-law was murdered in Mexico while trying to be a real king, and his wife is now the "Mad Carlotta," sister of the famous and infamous king of the Belgians; her only son, Prince Rudolph, killed himself—or was shot—in disgrace; her sister, Marie of Naples, was deposed from her throne and is still in exile, and her sister, the Duchesse d'Alencon, was burned to death in the Paris charity bazaar.

One of her cousins was the mad Louis of Bavaria, who drowned himself and his keeper in the Sternberg Lake thirteen years ago, and another is the present Bavarian king, who crawls around naked on all fours, mad. She herself was killed by an enemy of kings and princes—Lucifer—and he has gone mad, too.

But the throne of Hungary and Austria is without a queen and the emperor has no son. So this little pretty princess who has to live on English soil because France is disgusted with kings, etc., and especially disgusted with her disgraceful brother, the Duke of Orleans, who pretends to be a pretender, must marry the old emperor of Austria to see if that tottering, worn-out and utterly dissatisfied dynasty can be kept together by a baby.

Killed by an African Lion.

It was a horrible death which came two months ago to J. F. S. O'Hara, an English surveyor in the East African Protectorate. Sick and in bed, he was dragged out and killed by a lion in the presence of his wife and children. Mr. O'Hara, who was accompanied by his wife and children, was encamped near the River Vol, having with him a number of native servants. He was suffering from a severe attack of fever, and, feeling certain that the natives would alarm him in case of any emergency, he went to sleep with his tent open, but was awakened toward midnight by the shouts and cries of the natives. On rising he saw a lion a few yards from the tent, and found that all the natives had fled. Notwithstanding the fact that he was so weak as hardly to be able to walk, he seized his gun and attempted to kill the animal. The night was dark, however, and the lion succeeded in making off into the bush before O'Hara could take aim. After driving it off O'Hara collected his natives, and once more retired to bed, at the same time complaining to his wife that he felt ill. A few hours afterward his wife was roused by the shouts of her husband, and on rising found that the lion had returned, forced its way through the opening of the tent, and was attempting to drag off her husband, camp bed and all. Her shouts and the struggles of her husband roused the servants and with great difficulty the lion was again beaten off. But O'Hara had this time suffered such severe injuries that although everything was done that the limited means of the party would permit, he died a few hours afterward while being conveyed to Vol, the nearest point where there were any Europeans.

Held Under a Hypnotic Spell.

Mrs. R. Price has instituted suit against Dr. H. Cox of Huntington, W. Va., to compel him to liberate her from a hypnotic influence which, she says, he has exerted over her for two years. Cox treated Mrs. Price for some chronic trouble by the hypnotic influence method. She alleges that he is able to direct her every movement at will, though hundreds of miles distant, and that he is torturing her because of some prejudice. She says he has separated her from her husband, and the latter has filed suit for $25,000 damages against him.

Terrible Deaths of Insane Men.

On the Courthouse square at Columbia City, Ind., recently, William Mason, who had become insane, cut his throat and stabbed himself in the presence of several hundred people. He had come into the world without his consent and was going out of it without consulting anybody. A score of people tried to interfere, but he fought them off.

[SERVANT TO SEWARD.]

Aged Retainer of the Famous Secretary Leaves a Fortune.

William F. Butler, who served William H. Seward for more than forty years in the capacity of body servant, has died in Brooklyn, worth some $75,000. He was a slave in his early life, but managed to buy his freedom. Coming to Washington he took a cookship in a restaurant, where he was when the secretary came across him. There was a certain quaint philosophy about the black man which was charming to the white. Butler was with Seward during the greater part of his public career, and on his death had saved sufficient to retire. The tips he had received from his master have been well followed. He purchased land in that part of the capital which Seward's knowledge of the city led him to believe would soon be valuable. His small investment grew until the sum mentioned above is easily procurable. The fortune is left entirely to Miss Evangelina Z. Walker, of Brooklyn. Miss Walker is a young negress of 19, described as being of a light color, as straight as a poplar, and of a Caucasian cast of countenance. She was a godchild of Butler's, and having lived in the house with him since boyhood, regarded him as a second father. She nursed him tenderly through the last two years of his life, in view of which those immediately interested are prone to believe that she is justly entitled to the bequest. Butler was not married, but has several sisters, who may contest the will. Miss Walker is well educated.

LORD FAIRFAX.

Interests a Remarkable Old Ohio Man.

A letter to the Cincinnati Enquirer from John A. Tinsley, a most remarkable old gentleman living at Portsmouth, Ohio, expresses his belief that in the article in last Sunday's Enquirer on the present Lord Fairfax, living in Virginia, there were some errors, and he relates many interesting anecdotes of the early days in Maryland. "Lord Fairfax," he says, "did not have a single child, and this present Lord Fairfax must be descended from a brother of the great Lord Fairfax who came here in the last century." Mr. Tinsley has in his possession old deeds executed by the first Lord Fairfax to Isaac Van Meter. It seems that Mr. Tinsley's father had known the first Lord Fairfax when that gentleman was alive and he relates to him the story of how the county of Hampshire came to be named. Fairfax was sitting in front of his hotel one day when a drove of hogs passed by, and he inquired where they came from. "From the land along the south part of the Potomac, your grace," replied the man. "Very well, I shall call that county Hampshire, because those hogs look like the hogs in Hampshire, England," and for many years the land which now comprises several counties of the state was known as Hampshire.

Harem Elopement.

A daring young Englishman of good family (name not given) has succeeded in abducting and eloping with one of the ladies of the Sultan's own harem. According to the version of the story, the young man made her acquaintance during the recent festival of the Leilat el Kadrat, when all men and women alike go to the mosques to pray. Each of the ladies of the Sultan's harem who goes is jealously guarded by an eunuch, but the hero of this adventure succeeded in winning over the guardian of the beauty he admired by heavy bribes. The eunuch acted as go-between and made the necessary arrangements for the elopement. The Englishman succeeded in getting his Mohammedan lady love on board a steamer bound direct to Bombay. Several eunuchs, suspected of being accomplices, have been thrown into dungeons, and the Sultan utters fearful maledictions on the English.

Swiss Inn Keeper's Profits.

In Switzerland last summer there were 1,790 hotels, boarding houses, bathing and health resorts to accommodate the traveling public. When one includes about 1,500 smaller hostleries, with accommodations for about ten persons, there were sleeping accommodations for 140,000 travelers in Switzerland. During the main traveling season, from the middle of July to the end of August, the minimum expenditure of the average summer boarder, with his children and servants, is placed at the low sum of 5 francs. Nevertheless, this means a daily income to the innkeepers of 650,000 francs. Making allowance for favorable traveling weather, these estimates mean an income to the hotel keepers during the month and one-half of summer of 28,000,000 francs. In Luzerne alone there are fifty-two first-class hotels.

A Dangerous Topic.

"What has become of that little girl who recites 'Little Drops of Water'?" asked one of the boarders. "Well," answered the young man with wide ears, "with the present thaw in the streets and the possibility of a freshet up the river, her mother thought it would be just as well to keep her quiet for a while."—Washington Star.

NEW YORK'S WOMAN BURGLAR.

According to the police of Long Island City, burglary is the latest profession adopted by the gentler sex. They base their belief upon the case of Mary Seaman, with many aliases, who when arrested on suspicion near the Thirty-fourth street ferry landing in Long Island City, was found to have in her possession a big, mature and experienced "jimmy," such as is used by the most expert cracksmen. The "jimmy" was nearly a foot and a half long. It bore marks of use, and the woman could give no satisfactory explanation of having it in her possession. The instrument is large and heavy enough to break open almost any door, and showcases could be entered by means of it almost without effort. In the woman's skirt was found what the police describe as "a shoplifter's pocket," a bag sewn into the skirt about eighteen inches long and a foot wide. It was in this "shoplifter's pocket" that the jimmy was concealed. The woman, suspected of being a professional burglar, or sneak thief, was arrested while loitering near the ferry house. Detectives Kelly and Magdon had noticed that she carried a basket, and as the crowds came from the boats edged between persons and walked by their sides.

When arrested the woman claimed that she was selling pencils, and a few of them were in the big covered basket. But her replies were so evasive and contradictory that the detectives took her to the station house. When the jimmy was found the woman said she had found it in the street. She could not tell where, neither would she tell where she lived, except by saying that she lived in Sixth street, but had forgotten the number. She gave the name of Mary Seaman, but at different times gave other names.

Rapid Ester Choked.

New York Journal: While eating a piece of roast beef last night William Frederick, son of Robert Frederick, formerly superintendent of the Globe Iron Works of Port Chester, was choked to death at the dinner table in the presence of his family at Mount Vernon.

Young Frederick was eating rapidly in order to go out on the street when a piece of the meat became lodged in his windpipe and he died in 20 minutes. He was strangled and suffocated, the physicians say.

A STRANGE FAMILY.

Father But Little Taller Than His Young Child.

A German family at present engaged in ventures Thesplan, are attracting considerable attention in the Western towns. One of them is a child, evidently about 3 years of age; another is a small man, not a great deal taller than the child, and the third is a woman of more than ordinary size. Those who encounter this trio on the street invariably turn to look at them after they have passed, and they make all manner of conjectures as to who and what they are. It is evident that the handsome woman, whose smiling face still shows the freshness of youth, is not the mother of the little man, but not one person in a hundred would be likely to guess the exact relationship which exists between the three people. They are father, mother and son. Diederich Ulpts will be 39 years old on July 3 next. He is three feet six inches in height, about one inch for each year he has lived. Mrs. Diederich Ulpts, to all appearances, has not yet reached 30 years of age, but she is decidedly more than 30 inches tall. She stands, in fact, about five feet nine inches, with a figure proportioned to her height. Reinhold Ulpts, the son of this pair, is within a month of 3 years of age, and his height is two and a half feet. By the time Reinhold reaches the mature age of 6 he will probably be as tall as his father. Taken in all, it is quite a remarkable family, but one of the happiest that could be encountered. There is still another member of the family in the person of a baby now 6 months old, but as Mr. and Mrs. Ulpts do not consider traveling good for very small babies, the youngest of the Ulpts was left in Vienna when the father and mother came to America a few months ago.

CHILDREN USED

For the Art Feature of Advertising of Manufactured Goods.

New Orleans Times Democrat: "Speaking of art advertising," said a New Yorker who has been in the business a good many years, "it is perfectly true that there is a great scarcity of suitable women models for photo illustrations. The result is that a great many children are used. Turn the pages of any magazine that carries a large line of general 'ads,' and you will be surprised at the number of designs into which photos of children are worked. The interesting part of it is that they are usually the youngsters of the advertisers, who take a good deal of pride in thus exploiting their progeny to the world. That reminds me, by the way, of an amusing little story: Last summer, in going to my home in New York by way of the L. cars, I used to have my attention frequently attracted by a little boy who was traveling in the same direction with his nurse. They evidently lived somewhere near, for they were often on the train, and there was something about the child that struck me as being extraordinarily familiar. My wife remarked the same thing, but neither of us could tell where we had seen him before. Still, I could have sworn that his face was almost as well known to me as those of my own family, and I puzzled over the matter more than once. One afternoon when my wife was with me and 'our mystery,' as we called him, was perched across the way, I all of a sudden remembered. 'By Jove!' I exclaimed, 'that's the boy in Soandso's ad!' 'Why, so he is!' said my wife. 'How silly of us not to think of it before!' I had in mind a familiar illustration used by a big manufacturing concern, and the likeness was undeniable. After that we dropped the 'mystery' and called him 'the ad boy,' which was soon shortened to 'ad.' He proved to be the son of the manufacturer, and later on my children became acquainted with him, and, by force of habit, proceeded to call him 'Ad.' He took to it as a matter of course, and, oddly enough, it turned out to be his nickname at home. His real name was Adam. Queer, wasn't it?"

Could It Have Been Arranged.

Here the orator paused, to give his words greater effect.

"Where is your boasted prosperity?" he demanded in a hoarse whisper. "Who is richer tonight because we are under the gold standard? How many men are there in this audience," he thundered, "who can show me a gold coin? Is there one?"

"Yes, sir," replied a man near the door, rising up. "Here's a $20 gold piece."

About two hours later, while on his way home, the man with the $20 gold coin was robbed of it.

In every test made S. S. S. easily demonstrates its superiority over other blood remedies. It matters not how obstinate the case, nor what other treatment or remedies have failed, S. S. S. always promptly reaches and cures any disease where the blood is in any way involved. Everyone who has had experience with blood diseases knows that there are no ailments so real, deep-seated and difficult to cure. Very few remedies claim offer such incontrovertible evidence of merit. S. S. S. is not merely a tonic—it is a cure! It goes down to the very seat of all blood diseases, and gets at the not, like other remedies, dry up the poison and hide it from view temporarily, trace of taint, and rids the system of it forever.

Mrs. T. W. Lee, Montgomery, Ala., writes: "Some years ago I was inoculated with poison by a nurse who infected my babe with blood taint. I was covered with sores and ulcers from head to foot, and in my great extremity I prayed to die. Several prominent physicians treated me, but all to no purpose. The mercury and potash which they gave me seemed to add fuel to the awful flame which was devouring me. I was advised by friends who had seen wonderful cures made by it, to try Swift's Specific. I improved from the start, as the medicine seemed to go direct to the cause of the trouble and force the poison out. Twenty bottles cured me completely." Swift's Specific—

SAW IT IN A DREAM.

"Speaking of dreams and premonitions," said Gen. D. J. Cook, who for thirty-five years has been chief of the Rocky Mountain Detective Association, and for two terms was sheriff at Denver during the "palmy days" of the Western city—"speaking of dreams and premonitions reminds me of a strange psychological happening that came under my own personal observation as a detective, where a startling nightmare of terrible and complicated death and murder proved true in every single detail."

Detectives as a rule are not superstitious, and the idea of working out the clue to a crime on a mere dream is widely at variance with detective methods. They generally depend upon material facts as they find them with their own eyes and ears, but the following reminiscence, related by Gen. Cook, is so strange that even the wily detective has to admit that there is "something in dreams." It is the story of the killing of a fellow detective, and of the killing of two horse thieves—the story of a woman's dream, thrilling in the extreme and yet faithfully true in every particular, as attested by the criminal record of the West. The story deals principally with Alex Ramsey and his wife, and is located at Hayes City, Kan., the time being the fall of 1875. Ramsey, at that time, was about 35 years of age, and as fine a specimen of manhood as is met in a day's journey. He was thoroughly a Western man—frank, genial and liberal to a fault—as brave a man as ever "put spurs to a horse" when duty called him to action. He was a good detective, excelling especially in his dealings with desperate characters. A few years before the date of this story he had married a confiding, impressionable little woman down in the Missouri Valley, who loved him devotedly. She depended upon him implicitly, believed in his prowess in all matters, and really worshiped him. Soon after their marriage they removed to Hayes City, near the Colorado line, and then the terminus of the Kansas Pacific railroad—a live, bustling town full of life and abounding in the rough characters, such as accompany the building of railroads in the West.

Ramsey had not long been at Hayes City, when his courage, as well as his many other manly qualities, became known to the people of that place, for he frequently had occasion to aid in the handling of the violent spirits congregated there. Hence it came about that when the people of that place wanted an executive officer in whom they could trust, they selected Ramsey, Gen. Cook, as chief of the Rocky Mountain detective agency, heard of Ramsey, and in 1871 invited him to become a member of his association. The offer was accepted, and Ramsey became one of the most active officers of the organization, always conducting himself so as to win the approbation and maintain the confidence of his chief. Ramsey had served one term as sheriff of his county, and in the summer of 1875 was re-elected, virtually without opposition. Being in Denver soon after his re-election he told Gen. Cook that he was the first sheriff who had ever lived to be elected to a second term in Hayes City, his three predecessors having been killed before the expiration of their respective terms of office. "I have gone through one siege," he said, "and I am going to try it again. The chances are that I shall be killed, but I will take the chances."

It was in October following his visit to Denver that Mr. Ramsey was called upon to go in pursuit of two horse thieves. A character well known on the frontier in those days as "Dutch Pete," and known by no other name, accompanied by a "pal" whose name is not known at all, and one night made a raid upon a band of horses belonging to a man living in Colorado as an assistant in the work before him, and, kissing his wife good-by, rode off in company with Shepherd, going toward Smoky Hill with the intention of cutting off the retreat of the thieves. Mrs. Ramsey somehow seemed to feel an unusual desire to hold him back, although she said nothing to him, for she knew that he would attend to his duty in spite of any forebodings of hers, which he would consider childish, womanish fear.

At midnight the entire household was startled into wakefulness by a horrifying scream that seemed to come from the direction of Mrs. Ramsey's room. All were astir in a moment and all rushed pell-mell into her apartments. They found her out of bed in her night clothes and her two children, one of them a mere baby, clinging to her. She was talking in an incoherent manner at the top of her voice, and the children thoroughly frightened at their mother's manner, were crying loudly. Those gathered about the woman finally succeeded in quieting her and at last procured an explanation from her. "Such a horrible, horrible dream!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I know it's true! I saw it just as plain as day—plainer than I see you—just as real and terrible as if I had been there. I just know that Alex is dead. I didn't want him to go. I never in my life so longed to beg him not to go. I wish I had."

After this the woman became more quiet and told those standing about her that she had dreamed that she had seen her husband and Shepherd come upon the horse thieves and attack them; that the thieves had started to flee on their horses; that the officers had followed and fired upon them, the thieves returning the fire. Three men had fallen almost simultaneously from their horses, two of them being the fugitives and the third her husband, who had been fatally shot. Her dream had continued so as to take her out to search for her husband with the hope of meeting him upon his return. Instead of meeting him alive she encountered a covered wagon, which she described, bringing in his body, seeing which she had screamed so loud that she awoke both herself and the others asleep in the house. She refused to retire again that night. The only comfort that she seemed to receive was in the assurance that as soon as day should break she should be driven out in the direction which her husband had taken. "I know I shall meet that covered wagon," she said; "I just know it, but I want to go, anyhow, and to know the worst." According to promise she was allowed to start out from Hayes City at a very early hour on the succeeding morning, a friend accompanying her in a carriage. They had driven out a distance of fourteen miles without meeting any one, when there began to dawn a ray of hope that the dreadful vision of the dream would prove to have been merely a hallucination. But the poor woman looked eagerly forward for the purpose of getting the first view of that which she most dreaded to see. Long as it was in coming, the wagon came in sight all too soon. Rising up over the summit of an elevation in the plains and looking down the descending grade she saw, coming slowly toward her and her companion, a covered wagon drawn by two horses. Throwing up her hands so as to cover her eyes she exclaimed with all the force of positive conviction:

"My God, there's the wagon." After the sight of the wagon she refused to be comforted and only urged her driver to increase his speed, sobbing as if heartbroken as they pushed on.

The woman's dream had been more than a dream. It had been a real vision. There had been no deception. The vehicle was just as she had described it, and in it lay the lifeless body of her husband—all just as she had dreamed it.

Inquiry revealed the fact that the shooting had occurred as it had appeared to Mrs. Ramsey, and just as she described it to half a dozen witnesses before leaving Hayes City. The officers had come upon the thieves in the afternoon of the first day out, thirty-five miles from Hayes City, as they were concluding their dinner and preparing to continue their journey. They had mounted when they discovered the officers riding down upon them. The thieves knew Ramsey, and their first thought was to escape from him at all hazards. They accordingly put spurs to their horses, leaving their stolen animals behind. The officers spurred up their horses also, and were soon chasing the thieves across the plains. The two parties were not less than sixty yards apart when Ramsey said to Shepherd, after having summoned the fugitives to halt:

"Well, I don't see that there is anything to do but to bring them down. You take the one on your side and I'll take the fellow on my side."

This speech had hardly been spoken when the two thieves turned in their saddles, with pistols presented. It was plain to be seen that there must be a deadly duel there and then.

"Won't you surrender?" shouted Ramsey.

"Never!" was the reply.

"Then we will kill you."

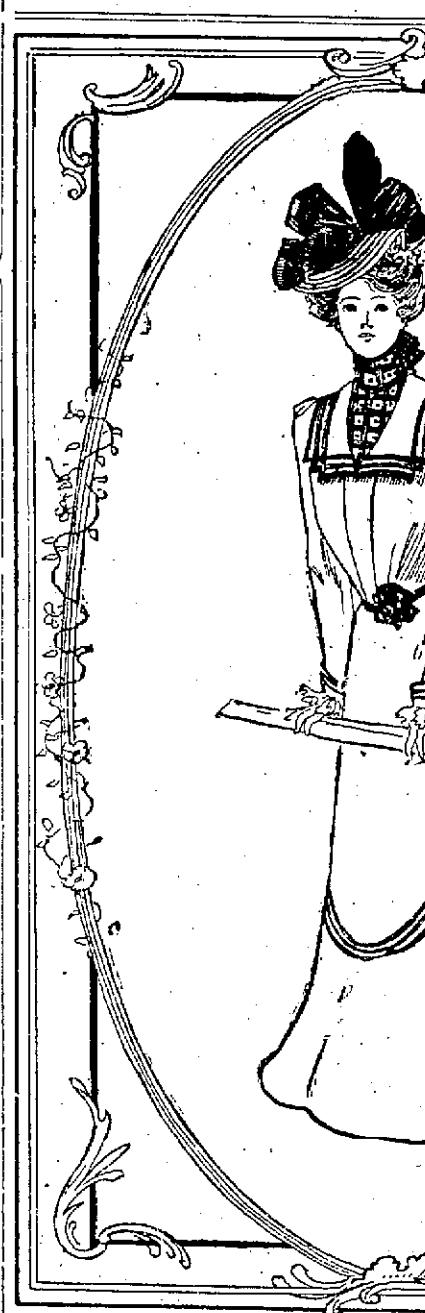

"Fire away."

"Give it to 'em," commanded Ramsey.

There were four pistol shots coming so close together as to sound like a volley.

One of the thieves, the one at whom Ramsey had shot, reeled and tumbled from his horse dead. The other reeled, but did not fall, and Shepherd spurred on after him, not noticing that Ramsey did not follow. After galloping a short distance the second man fell from his saddle, mortally wounded.

Turning then for the first time, Shepherd, who was unhurt, discovered that Ramsey had been knocked from

AFTERNOON GOWN OF CHECKED GINGHAM FROM HARPER'S BAZAR.

The costume published today, and taken from Harper's Bazar, is one that represents simplicity of outline and of making, and presents no difficulty to even an inexperienced needle-woman. The apron shaped upper part of the skirt is in three pieces, cut upon the straight of the goods, and fitted to the form by darts placed at intervals. It closes in the center of the back in undisturbed pleats. The ruffle flares about the bottom, but is joined smoothly around the curved edge of the skirt under flat stitched bands of plain colored gingham, cut in bias stripes and stitched on each side, as was the fashion in satin band trimming during the past winter. The ruffles should be cut upon the straight of the goods, and the breadths joined according to the demands of the ruffle pattern. The pattern does not follow for hem at the bottom of the ruffle. A shaped facing for the latter accompanies the pattern, which is that of a skirt of simple walking length just touching the ground in the back.

THE HUMORIST.

The quarrel had come at last. "You're a flirt!" he cried.

"A flirt?" she repeated scornfully. "Why, I don't believe you know what a flirt is."

"A flirt," he said bitterly, "is a girl who can make a man think he is in heaven when in reality he is next door to the other place, with the door slightly ajar."—Chicago Post.

his horse. He had been shot through and through, the ball passing near his heart. There was a ranch a few miles distant, and Shepherd determined to make an effort to get his friend to it. He also decided to leave the thieves where they had fallen. "Dutch Pete" proved to be the man at whom Ramsey had directed his aim. He it was who had shot Ramsey. But Ramsey's shot had gone straight home, passing through Pete's heart. The other thief was also mortally wounded and soon died. Their bodies were covered over with stones and left where they had fallen. The stolen horses were gathered together and returned to their owner.

As for Ramsey, he was taken to the ranch referred to and was there given every possible attention. But after lingering on in great pain, he died at 12 o'clock of the night succeeding the shooting—at the exact hour when Mrs. Ramsey was having her strange and startling dream.

The body was then placed in the ranchman's covered wagon, and the cortege started for Hayes City, meeting Mrs. Ramsey on the road.

The anguish of the woman was pitiable. She refused to be comforted after her husband's death, and two weeks after the funeral she was a raving maniac. Four months afterward her unhappy spirit deserted the flesh and she joined her husband in another world.

DEATH ENDED ALL.

A few days ago Chicago was startled by an attempted double murder. A young woman who found her country home too confining found the great city too narrow to sustain her good name, and after succumbing to the almost inevitable consequences of quitting the parental roof tried to wreak bloody vengeance on the man. Thinking that she had killed him she turned the weapon to her own head and in another instant she was in eternity. All the hopes and ambitions that led her away from home had their miserable ending in a blood crimsoned tomb. Such is usually the case with willful girls who see no hope in home.

Perhaps it is worth the while to look into the antecedents of the Chicago murderess, Martha Mabel Burke. She was reared at Paw Paw, Mich., and left home to take up her abode in MARTHA MABEL BURKE, a professor's home. There she learned stenography.

About seven years ago she went to Chicago, believing that the city would furnish better opportunities than a country town. The young woman was now talented and ambitious. Her applications for employment were of a higher order than those of most stenographers and she was successful. The world's fair was then in existence and she went there for a position, and a few weeks later she was accepted as a secretary to the board of lady managers and was provided with apartments at the Windemere hotel. When the fair ended she still found lucrative work. Then the presidential campaign came on and Miss Burke became stenographer for Mark Hanna, work in which she was regarded an expert.

But the bounding health which she had drawn from the country life of her girlhood began to fade away. The delicate color of her cheeks died out and her step became less elastic as the weeks dragged by. Her friends noticed the change in her, but as usual she said it was nothing; it would soon pass away; it was but a temporary derangement of the system, she thought, which would soon yield to exercise and hygiene. At this time she was living with Mrs. George Doane at 6339 Champlain avenue. Mrs. Doane had become acquainted with the ambitious young woman, struggling alone for a livelihood in the great city and had invited her to make her home with the Doane family, an invitation which Miss Burke gladly accepted. The close relationship which grew between them is best expressed by the farewell letter of the suicide, which was addressed to Mrs. Doane as "Dear Mother."

When her health failed so greatly as to interfere with her work and to be a subject of constant concern among her friends Miss Burke consented to professional examination and advice and learned to her dismay that she was suffering with an abdominal tumor, which would cause her death if not removed. From that time the happiness died out of Mabel Burke's life and the light died out of her eyes. Constantly haunted by the intelligence the doctors had given her she set about making preparations for the operation which the doctors said was imperative. She knew it would be costly, that she would be weeks, perhaps months, in a hospital after it was over, and she had not enough money to meet the expenses. Unwilling that Mrs. Doane should pay all of the charges, she went to her parents' home in Coloma, Mich., to tell them her story and seek financial aid. Accompanied by Mrs. Doane she made the sorrowful journey to the home, which had never been a home to her. Both her parents were there, but her mother would not hear her out. As soon as the unfortunate girl began her tale Mrs. Burke, it is said by the dead girl's friends, at once suspected another cause for her condition and did not hesitate to say so.

"Is it this way you have come back here to disgrace us?" she is said to have asked her.

For nine months Miss Burke lay in the hospital and when she finally did return to her Woodlawn home, with sunken cheeks and pale face, she was not entirely recovered. Indeed, up to the day of her death she was under treatment by a physician, for the expected complete recovery never came about. This fact saddened her whole life, though she gradually regained her former good looks and went about quietly in the society in which she had been accustomed to move before her illness. She was bright and clever, a good musician and a strikingly pretty girl, and therefore was much sought after and had half a dozen admirers. But to Mrs. Doane and other intimate friends she confided upon her return from the hospital that she would never marry and that she would never allow any young man to fall in love with her because she could only turn him away if he sought her hand at last.

On this point she was firm, although her women friends argued that she should not deny herself the pleasures of society altogether. She went to social events of every nature in Woodlawn, but never gave encouragement to any of her admirers—but once, a young man whom she was forced to "give up" on account of her derangement.

Later there came into her life a ray of sunshine and hope. David J. Wile, the attorney, brought it. Their manner of meeting was clearly in the relationship of attorney and client. The young woman had become imbued with the idea that she had cause for a suit against a physician for malpractice. It bore upon the operation she had undergone. She went to the office of A. S. Trude to seek his counsel. That was more than a year ago. It was then she met Wile and Mr. Trude advised her to allow him to handle her case. She told him of her case, concealing no portion of it. He was informed of the nature of the operation, a necessary contingent upon the bringing of the suit. Wile is said to have allowed her to believe that there were some hopes for her to recover. They were frequently in each other's company regarding the matter. Their acquaintance ripened into friendship and when finally Wile had persuaded her that she had no case he continued to call upon her. He had found a bond of sympathy between them. They were both lovers of music and thus in this platonic sort of way they enjoyed each other's companionship. Wile seldom called upon Miss Burke after dark, but neighbors say that he was at her home almost every Sunday. She never went out with him, it is said, farther perhaps than occasionally to a neighbor's house. Several of the residents in the vicinity had made the acquaintance of Wile, but none of them knew that he was married. Months passed by and it was no secret that Miss Burke's friendship for Wile had ripened into love. She possessed for him, her friends believed, the pure love on which Plato hinged a philosophy. No arguments could ever induce them to believe otherwise.

Yet there was a premonition among them that her courtship would result in more sorrow and the same confidant to whom Miss Burke had confessed her former pang told her a few weeks ago that she would experience such another if she were not careful.

"But Mr. Wile knows everything," Miss Burke replied. "He has known from the start and still he continues to come and spend hours with me. He must admire my companionship or he would not continue to call, admire it as I admire his. It is possible for two persons to love each other mentally. Ours is a mental attachment."

Then came the story to the ears of Miss Burke that Wile was already married and that he had a daughter. Thereupon she sought out his wife and learned from her lips that the rumor was true. Her last hope vanished: The deception, the wrong practiced upon her was more than she could endure. Discouraged and disheartened beyond all reparation, she plotted her own destruction and to take from the world with her the man she loved.

How far she carried the plot into execution is fresh in the mind of everyone. Meeting Wile by appointment, they went together to the Hotel St. Anthony, at 2703 Wabash avenue, and engaged the parlor with its piano for a few minutes. Miss Burke asked the man to play a love song they had often admired and sang together, and as his fingers glided over the keys and with the strains of the music ringing in her ears she shot him twice. He fell from the stool, and, with the evident impression that he was killed, and stamped thirty-five head of them. When the owner awoke the next morning he found his animals gone, but he was able to ascertain that the thieves had taken their booty in the direction of Smoky Hill or the Republican river. His first impulse, as he afterwards explained, was to pursue them himself, but remembering the skill and courage of Ramsey in running down such characters he changed his mind and went to Hayes City and put the case in his hands.

Ramsey cheerfully took charge of the matter, securing Frank Shepherd, a friend in, whom he had confidence,

FREAKS OF CUPID

There are more freak matrimonial complications in Indiana than in any other section of the country. Cupid, in his operations through Indiana, seems to have been afflicted with a most aggravated case of the blind staggers.

It was but a week ago that an Indiana mother awoke to find she had married her own son; another woman found she had married her brother; another found that by marriage he became his own grandfather; another that by taking a wife of his choice he became his own uncle, and so down a long list the cupidian blunders indicate that Indiana is not the safest section of the country in which to fall in love. The state has one advantage, however—divorces are easy.

Justice W. W. Strader of Columbus has just united in marriage a father and daughter, a brother and sister. The couples were Russell Debusk and Miss ventures enfold themselves so often when the pencil is applied to the problem that by tracing it out it is very easy to figure all parties off of the earth. It is as complex as a case right over the line in Ohio county. A man named Miller married a widow who had a grown-up daughter. His father fell in love with the stepdaughter. The father became the son's son-in-law, and the stepdaughter became his mother. Recently the son's wife had a child. The child was Miller's father's brother-in-law and Miller's own uncle, for he was a brother of his stepdaughter, Miller's father's wife—his stepdaughter—also had a son, who was, of course, Miller's brother and incidentally Miller's grandchild, for he was the son of Miller's daughter. Thus Miller's own wife was his mother's mother and Miller became his wife's grandchild at the same time. And then to top the whole thing off, as the husband of his grandmother, he was his own grand father.

Kentucky's Champion Duellist.

Joseph Bowman, who recently died in Jessamine county, Kentucky, at the ripe old age of 84 years, was the fighter of four desperate duels in each of which he succeeded in killing his antagonist. In 1848, while living in Mississippi, he quarreled with a man named Snelling, and by agreement they were tied together, armed with bowie knives and put into a dark room. Although frightfully cut himself, Bowman came out victor. His next duel was in 1854, when he had a dispute with a Spaniard named Domingo. Armed with knives, they made for each other, and Bowman severed the Spaniard's head from his body.

When the war broke out, Bowman enlisted on the confederate side. After the war he fought a duel with a cousin, named Williams. The combat was with pistols at ten paces, and Bowman wounded his antagonist so badly that he died. Bowman's last encounter was only a few years ago, when in a hand to hand conflict with "Joe" Miller, who was known as the "Bad Man from Racine," he came out victorious, killing Miller without receiving as much as a scratch.

A prevalent sickness had been ascribed to these supposed "witches," and he took their lives. In his confession he says that he committed these murders to sacrifice his life for the Lord's cause and the love of his people. It is thought that religion unbalanced his mind.

STOLE SIXTY THOUSAND.

This is said to be the first picture ever published of the notorious robber, Charles A. Beeler, who stole $60,000 from the Wells-Fargo Express company on December 28 last and fled to Mexico. Beeler was captured on March 8 at Bustamante, Mexico, and is now in jail at San Antonio, Tex., awaiting trial. Beeler was a messenger for the San Antonio office of the express company, and on March 28 was entrusted with a number of money packages for delivery. In one was $50,000 to pay employees of the Southern Pacific company, and in others were sums aggregating $10,000. With this fortune Beeler escaped to Mexico, leaving his horse and wagon standing five miles from the city. At first it was thought he had been murdered, but it was soon discovered that he had made arrangements for a relay of horses for his flight. The Wells-Fargo company offered $5,000 reward for his capture and 10 per cent of the money recovered. The most expert detectives in the country vainly sought for Beeler until March 8th, when he was found at a little village in Mexico by Deputy United States marshals who had been trailing him for weeks. After spending eight days in a Mexican jail he was induced to return to San Antonio without ex-

A Female Sampson.

Jennie Robinson of Burleson county, Tex., does not know how old she is, but she thinks, as she says, that she is yet in her "teens." She looks a little older than she would have us believe, if in using that expression she lays claim to being a little miss under 20. She knows that she is much stouter than any man she ever saw, and, if several of her acquaintances are worthy of credit, she very recently demonstrated that she possesses in her arms the strength of five field hands. The overseer of the Bird Song plantation says five big, brawny negroes were making an effort to raise a heavy piece of machinery from the ground high enough for an engineer to slip a block under it, when Jennie happened to appear among them, and they asked her to help them. She pushed them aside and lifted the piece of machinery high enough to suit the purpose of the engineer, apparently without any very great effort. The astounded negroes tried with their united strength to equal the feat that had just been performed by the young girl, and the owner says that they were unable to do it. She weighs 447 pounds, and there is no surplus flesh on her body. Her muscles are as hard as a tough piece of wood. She is good-natured, very bright and well liked by the white people of the neighborhood in which she lives. Last fall Jennie attended a traveling show, where a prize of $10 was offered to any one who could either knock down or throw to the ground a black bear that had been trained to wrestle and box with man or brute. Jennie is a dear lover of coin, and when she saw that bright $10 gold piece in the hand of the man who was leading bruiser around the ring, boastingly challenging any man, woman, dog or pack of dogs to enter the arena and wrestle, box or fight Sampson, her black eyes glittered and the smile that is always on her face broadened into a triumphant grin, that expressed a whole handful of very white teeth. "Man," she said, "as she walked up to the ropes, 'does you mean that you will give me that $10 if I can make that thing tuck his tail and crawl under de wagin?' 'I will certainly give you the prize if you succeed in throwing Sampson on his back, or knocking him out in a single round,' he replied. 'Well, gib de money to some 'spectable man, de due held the prize, and Jennie sprang over the ropes. The bear instantly assumed an erect attitude, and began to dance around his antagonist, very much after the manner of an accomplished pugilist. The fun did not last long. Sampson made a rush toward Jennie, and she sprang aside like a panther and landed a blow behind the bear's forehead which sent him sprawling to the earth, and he lay there. The people were so much surprised that they did not begin to roar until they saw the showman lift up one of the bear's limp forelegs, and realized that the triumphant giantess had ended the earthly career of the showman's pet with a single blow of one of her powerful arms. When Col. Perdue handed Jennie the gold piece she turned to the crestfallen and abashed showman and said: "Is you got any mo' varmints? If you is, jes' trot 'em out. 'Spec I could pull your elephant's snout off, 'ef you gimme bout $20 mo'." Upon one occasion in a prankish mood she picked up one end of an ox yoke and helped a four-year-old steer to pull a big plow across a ten-acre field, and upon another occasion she dismounted from an obstinate and recalcitrant mustang, and after tying his legs she lifted him up on her shoulder and carried the ani-

MIAMI UNIVERSITY.

Seventy-Fifth Anniversary of "The Mother of Statesmen."

Origin and History of the Institution
—Many Distinguished Men Nurtured Among Its Graduates—
The Exercises in June.

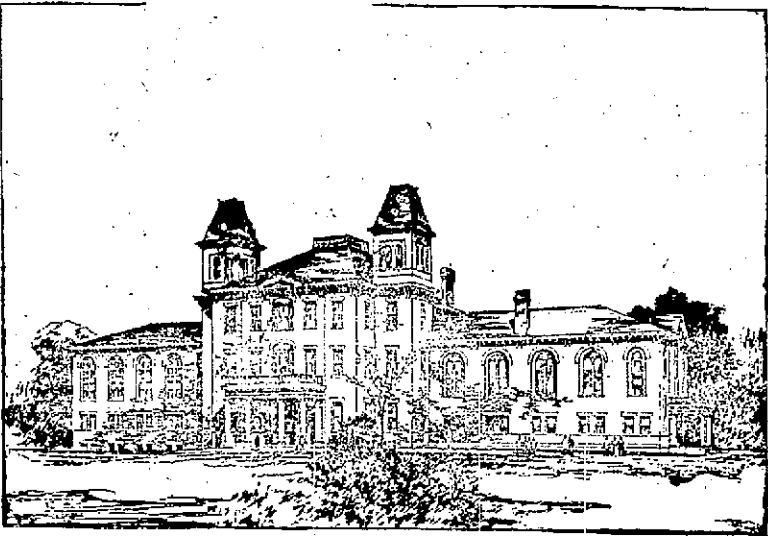

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Miami university, which will be celebrated the week of June 11, will be one of the most important college events of the present year, for the reason that it is the diamond anniversary of the first and most famous college founded in the west, and that it will be a reunion of many of our most prominent public men, who have been students within its halls.

Miami university was born in the spirit of the great ordinance of 1787, one of the chief mandates of which is that religion, morality and knowledge, being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall ever be encouraged. Pursuant to this, congress provided that one complete township should be reserved, out of the land grant to John Cleves Symmes in 1792, for the support of an institution for higher education. In 1809 the state of Ohio accepted the trust of management of such an institution and passed "an act to establish Miami university." In 1818 the construction of the buildings was begun, and in 1824 the trustees opened this college under the presidency of Dr. Robert H. Bishop, who consecrated his life to the organization and upbuilding of the college.

Miami university at the outset took a high rank, and the youth of the first families of the west and south drank Raikes of America," were graduated in the class of 1833. William S. Groesbeck, who defended President Andrew Johnson in the famous impeachment trial, and whose speech on that occasion electrified the whole country, was graduated in 1834. Of his classmates may be mentioned John J. McCrea, at one time governor of Mississippi and later a congressman; Rev. Joseph G. Monfort, who has been editor of The Herald and Presbyterian since 1855, and who enjoys the distinction of being the oldest living alumnus of this institution, and Rev. Thomas E. Thomas, a noted minister and college president. William Dennison, the great war governor of Ohio, who had the distinction of being postmaster-general in Lincoln's second cabinet, was a member of the class of 1835. This also brings to mind that Caleb B. Smith, a student in the thirties, was secretary of the interior in President Lincoln's first cabinet.

In the class of 1836 we notice that James Birney attained great eminence and represented the United States at The Hague for seven years. James B. Howell, of the class of 1837, and John Stuart Williams, known as "Cerro Gordo" Williams, of the class of 1838, both served in the United States senate, the former from Iowa, the latter from Kentucky. George E. Pugh, of the class of 1840, was one of the distinguished senators from Ohio at the outbreak of the rebellion. Charles H. Hardin, of the class of 1841, served the state of Missouri as its governor for two years. His classmate, Samuel Shellabarger, attained the greatest eminence as a lawyer, and was appointed United States minister to Portugal by President Grant in 1869, but resigned two years later to accept a position on the United States civil service commission. Oliver P. Morton, who was a student for three years, from 1842 to 1845, was the celebrated war governor of Indiana and deep at its perennial spring of knowledge. Its graduates have taken prominent positions in all the walks of life, and no institution, when we compare it by the number of alumni, has graduated so many distinguished men as Miami university. In early years its position was so high and it occupied such a commanding influence that it was known as the "Yale of the West." In later years, as the sons of this famous institution were so frequently honored with grave and responsible public duties, it has been named "The Mother of Statesmen."

A glance at the alumni roll of Miami university shows that this institution is justly entitled to these popular phrases. In the class of 1852 we see the name of Hon. Benjamin Harrison, distinguished lawyer, senator, president of the United States. In the same class we see the name of David Swing, the great pulpit orator, who preached every Sunday to thousands in the Auditorium at Chicago until his death a few years ago. In this class we see also the name of Milton Saylor, at one time speaker of the national house of representatives. In the class of 1856 we notice the name of that great editor, Whitelaw

WHITELAW REID.

Reid, of the New York Tribune, at one time the nominee of the republican party for vice president, and lately a member of the peace commission which framed the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain. Mr. Reid dealt with all the problems arising out of that great controversy, and as the commencement orator of Miami university this year, he has chosen for his text an international theme, and will treat of the new problems confronting us as a nation to-day in a way that will attract the attention of the entire country. Mr. Reid will deliver this address on Thursday morning, June 15, on the university campus at Oxford, Ohio.

Among the earlier graduates of Miami, the name of Gen. Robert C. Schenck, who served as minister to England under Grant, stands out pre-eminent. He was a graduate of the second class of Miami. Rev. William McClure Thompson, author of "The Land and the Book," graduated in 1828. The author of "Cotton is King," Rev. Ebenezer Newton Elliott, belonged to the class of 1830. Duncan Kenner, who represented the confederate states at the court of Great Britain in 1864, was a member of the class of 1831. Charles Anderson, ex-governor of Ohio, and Rev. Benjamin W. Chidlaw, "the Robert later served four years in the United States senate. Rev. Dr. David A. Wallace, of the class of 1846, was for 32 years a college president, and was one of the greatest administrators of college affairs the west has ever known. Rev. Dr. S. S. Laws, of the class of 1849, was president of the Missouri state university for 13 years. Alexander C. McClurg, at the head of the great publishing house of A. C. McClurg & Co., and Senator James W. McMillan, of Iowa, were members of the class of 1853. The present chancellor of the New York university, Henry M. McCracken, and the distinguished Dr. John S. Billings, at one time surgeon general of the United States, but now of New York, were graduated in 1857. The late Senator Brice, whose benefactions to the university are well known, was a member of the class of 1863.

An unusually large proportion of the graduates of Miami university have become national characters. Many other graduates may be mentioned whose lives have been none the less influential, but the above citations were made solely for the purpose of showing that Miami university has ever been faithful to its trust, and no institution can point to greater accomplishments. Miami has never been a large college. The largest class ever graduated from this institution numbered 44, while the average annual number of graduates has been less than one-half of that number. The average attendance has never exceeded 200. It is therefore subject to the criticism of being a small college, but its achievements stand unequalled to-day in the history of American colleges. There has always been thorough training at Miami in the classics and the students have profited greatly by their intimate association with the renowned professors that it has always been the good fortune for Miami university to command. The college has always kept in view the fact that the noblest work of God is a manly man, and it has ever been the aim of Miami university to make manly men out of the youth entrusted to its care, and to ground them thoroughly in the fundamental principles of religion, morality, and knowledge, the sacred charge of the ordinance of 1787.

The faculty of the university now numbers fifteen. They are able and accomplished educators and their work is most thorough. The president of the university is Rev. Dr. William O. Thompson, who is justly famed as a sincere Christian gentleman, earnest and industrious, who enjoys the highest confidence and esteem of the alumni and friends of the institution.

The most complete arrangements have been made for the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary on Wednesday, June 14. The colleges of the United States have been requested to send delegates to represent the institutions officially at these services. The governors and their staffs of the states of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky have been invited and are expected to be present. Prominent alumni from all parts of the United States have signified their intention of being present. The exercises and gathering will fitly celebrate the diamond anniversary of the most famous college of the west.

The Constant Wooing Lover

is the man who wins the maid, but he don't want to make a "rough rider" of her, when he takes her out in his carriage to let the beauties of nature soften her heart.

Our Easy Riding BUGGIES

are the thing to make her wish that she could ride on forever with you. Our line of vehicles are well known, and not only speak for themselves but speak for us as well. When you see a manufacturing concern put a buggy on the market and put their reputation as a manufacturer with it as we do you may know that the buggy has got the quality and workmanship to sustain both, not for a few months only, but for years.

We take Pride in our Reputation for Vehicles that have the Quality and are Built Right.

Our customers tell us that they save more than enough in repairs alone to make up the difference between the price of our buggies and those that are offered by others for less money, claiming them to be just as good as ours. Try us and you will say the same.
